Señor Presidente

I have heard that a known as "CODEPU" (Comite de los Derechos del Pueblo), has recently had its offices broken into, and death threats made to its members. The group making the death threats identified itself as the "Frente Nacionalista de Combate".

I am an active member of a human rights group in my own country, Australia. I believe that such groups are an important part of any modern democratic country. Therefore, I hope that steps will be taken to see that the makers of those death threats are investigated and brought to justice. I hope also that protection will be given to threatened members of CODEPU while the danger of intimidation exists.

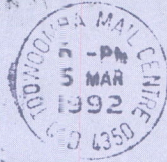

I am sure that your government is committed to ensuring that independent human rights groups can work without the fear of intimidation.

Yours respectfully

D. Wiseman.
